

Hi guys,

I'm not sure which thread this belongs to.... I've come across a really weird glitch with a site I've just made. It only happens in Firefox. I've tested in Chrome, Opera & IE which all work (I would have thought the problem browser would be IE!).

If I view the site photo essays page by typing the domain name (http://www.nikkirixon.com/photo_essays.html) - which forwards to the files which are hosted on my web space) in the browser, & then click any of the image thumbnails, the table cell behind the image changes colour to a lighter grey!

If I type in the url which points directly to the files on my webspace this doesn't happen:

http://www.deviantdidg.com/nikki/photo_essays.html

The css can be seen here:

<http://www.deviantdidg.com/nikki/css/styling.css>

As I say this only seems to happen in Firefox, & I have absolutely no idea why this is happening. If anyone can shed any light or offer any suggestions, that would be much appreciated as it's driving me mad! Thanks a mill & enjoy your weekend :)

Michael.
